

CALL FOR ABSTRACTS

Conference theme:

The Granada Conference on End-of-Life welcomes empirical explorations, ethical analyses, and innovative research on regulatory aspects related to end-of-life practices, including medical aid-in-dying (MAID), palliative sedation, withholding/withdrawal of life-sustaining-therapies, advanced care planning, etc

Researchers, scholars, practitioners, and students are invited to submit abstracts for either brief oral presentations or posters.

The abstract submission deadline is September 30th, 2024.

Oral Paper Presentation

The oral paper presentation may be authored by an individual or a group. The abstract should be in line with the conference's main theme and linked to any of the conference's sub-themes. The oral presentations will be grouped based on the sub-themes. The abstract submitted should be 300 words or less. More information about the abstract is provided below.

Poster Presentation

The poster presentation may be created by an individual or by a group and is to be displayed on a portable wall. Time will be reserved during the Conference for the author(s) of the poster to present it and answer questions that attendees may have. To apply for a poster presentation, the author(s) must submit an abstract of a maximum of 300 words. There is no mandatory specific format for posters. The suggested format is 120 cm high and 90 cm wide.

Abstract submission guidelines

- Submissions of up to 300 words are welcome on any of the nine conference topic categories. Please make sure that your proposal remains consistent with the overall program theme.
- Provide relevant information as to the proposed presentation's perspective, thesis, or goals. Be sure to mention your perspective and methodology.
- Demonstrate that your work is significant. Show that your research is generalizable beyond the scope of your study and that your presentation would be of interest to those outside of your institution.
- Make sure that your proposal is novel. If it is a topic that has been discussed in the field, state how your proposal adds to the existing dialogue.
- Individuals may submit and participate in only one proposal as first authors in response to this call.
- Proposals containing identifying information (e.g., names, institution names) in the abstract body will not be reviewed.
- All presenters must complete a disclosure of any financial interests or other relationships that could be considered a conflict of interest.

If your abstract is for a presentation based on empirical research, it could include the following:

- Background and purpose: description of the problem, study objectives, research question(s), and/or hypotheses;

- Methods: study design, including a description of participants and selection strategies, data collection procedures, measures, and approaches to analysis;
- Findings: specific results in summary form;
- Conclusions and implications: description of the main outcome(s) of the study and implications for practice, policy or further research.

If your abstract is for a presentation that is not based on primary empirical research, it could include the following:

- Background and purpose of the presentation;
- Research question
- A summary of the main points of the presentation;
- How the presentation will address one or more of the conference's aims and themes;
- Conclusions from and implications of your presentation for practice, policy or further research.

After peer review, you will be notified if your proposal has been accepted (either as a flash talk oral presentation or as a poster) or rejected. Please mention any preference on the format (oral/poster) of your proposal.
